The criticisms passed upon the work of all the performers has been very favorable. The entertainment proved successful financially as well as socially.

St. Patrick's day varied but little from the other days of the year, except that nearly everybody wore green. In the evening, however, the Trades and Labor assembly gave a ball at the K. of P. hall.

The attendance was only fair and the ball was filled. All arrangements were perfect and the guests enjoyed the occasion. Such balls ought to be encouraged, for they enable a large number of young people who do not belong to the dancing clubs to enjoy an occasional good dance in the best hall in the city and to good music.

Now during Lent would be a good time for some of the men who are active in society to repent and reform in some respects. Women are not always treated with proper respect here. The men do not mean to show want of respect, but some of them are careless.
